Game theory is the study of the ways in which interacting choices of economic agents produce outcomes with respect to the preferences (or utilities) of those agents, where the outcomes in question might have been intended by none of the agents. The meaning of this statement will not be clear to the non-expert until each of the italicized words and phrases has been explained and featured in some ...

Game Theory (Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy)

This paper is a survey of applied work with auction data. First, we summarize the pre-game theoretic competitive bidding literature based on decision theory and the associated empirical work, centered essentially around the winner's curse debate.

Game theory and empirical economics: The case of auction

Soil health, along with water supply, is the most valuable resource for humans, as human life depends on the soil's generosity. Soil degradation, therefore, poses a threat to food security, as it reduces yield, forces farmers to use more inputs, and may eventually lead to soil abandonment. Unfortunately, the importance of preserving soil health appears to be overlooked by policy makers.

Soil Degradation, Land Scarcity and Food Security

where c_t denotes consumption at age t , a_t the asset stock, y_t the realization of the stochastic labor earnings, and r the return to the single risk free asset. The probability that the household survives to period t is S_t , $h = \hat{a} \cdot l = h_t \hat{a}^{-1} s_l$, where s_l is the survival probability between age $l - 1$ and age l . In each period t , the household allocates total resources between current ...
