Figure 5 shows, on an attribute basis, two data points fail to conform to the limits. However a probability plot would shows the entire data set of 100 data points would be well with the  $\pm 3\%$  tolerance lines. Trendlines on probability plots tell different information than does attribute data.

JMP was developed in the mid- to late-1980s by John Sall and a team of developers to make use of the graphical user interface introduced by the Apple Macintosh. It originally stood for "John's Macintosh Project" and was first released in October 1989. It was used mostly by scientists and engineers for design of experiments (DOE), quality and productivity support (Six Sigma), and reliability ...

An embedded system is a computer that has been built to solve only a few very specific problems and is not easily changed. In contrast, a general-purpose computer can do many different jobs, and can be changed at any time with new programs for new jobs. An embedded system usually does not look like a computer, often there is no keyboard or monitor or mouse.
